KINDS OF KINGS / COMPOSERS COLLECTIVE

Kinds of Kings is a collective of US-based composers: Gemma Peacocke (New Zealand), Shelley Washington (United States), Emma O'Halloran (Ireland), Finola Merivale (Ireland), Maria Kaoutzani (Cyprus), and Susanna Hancock (United States). Formed in 2017, the collective focuses on amplifying and advocating for underheard voices and producing immersive and inclusive work.

In the 2018-19 season Kinds of Kings has concert dates with New York-based chamber groups Metropolis Ensemble and Desdemona, the ZAFa Collective in Chicago, and the St Louis Symphony as part of the orchestra's Pulitzer Series. The collective is also collaborating with award-winning Australian ensemble Rubiks Collective to produce an album and tour of new chamber works exploring the idea of home and separation. www.kindsofkings.com
